American Institute for Cancer Research

Who We Are and What We Do . . .

This year almost 600,000 Americans will lose their lives to cancer, the nation's leading cause of death. We can change that. Today we know that reducing our risk for many forms of cancer is an attainable goal.

The American Institute for Cancer Research has led the way in research and education in diet, nutrition and cancer for 3 decades. The Institute's programs have made possible pioneering research, which has expanded knowledge and understanding of the role of diet and nutrition in the prevention and treatment of cancer.

AICR's education programs have increased public awareness of cancer prevention. We have provided millions of Americans with current information on how to reduce their cancer risk. Everyday, AICR's education efforts are helping consumers make dietary changes for a healthier America.

There are no easy answers in the fight against cancer and many questions still need to be answered. The American Institute for Cancer Research remains on the forefront of this fight, providing innovative and effective research and education programs.

With your upcoming event, you are contributing a great deal to our mission and for that we are truly grateful. Thank you again for your support.
